Terms of Use for Supplier Users

To uphold the quality and reputation of the System as defined in the General Terms of Use, your use of the System is subject to the General Terms of Use, and to these Terms of Use for Supplier Users, collectively referred to as Terms of Use.

If you are found to be in violation of the Terms of Use at any time, as determined by the Public Procurement Regulatory Agency (PPRA) and the Ministry of Finance (MoF) in their sole discretion, we may warn you or suspend or terminate your account and Legal Actions may be initiated. If you find anything on the website that causes concern please contact us.

1 Online Registration

Online Registration through <https://www.taneps.go.tz> is open to individuals and organisations. In case your organisation does not have a profile within the System, you will need to provide information both for your organisation and your personal data in order to register.

When you register an organisation, you will be designated as its administrator for the purpose of <https://www.taneps.go.tz>. Upon finalisation of the registration process, you will receive an email indicating how to finalise the registration process. A process is then followed in order for the PPRA to verify that your registration is valid and eligible and to ensure that you or your organisation have indeed not already registered in the past within the System, thus limiting the possibility of double registrations.

This preliminary validity check does not constitute by any means an approval by the PPRA for the Supplier to take part in a public procurement competition, by replacing the formal qualification, selection and exclusion criteria foreseen by law. Furthermore, passing the preliminary validity check does not constitute a formal guarantee by the PPRA of the legal status and validity of the Supplier. This preliminary validity check is primarily followed in order to monitor the data entered within the System, the Suppliers registered within it and is a safety net for data format, uniformity and compliance.

You will need to activate your account through a transaction number provided via e-mail. Such activation will be necessary during your first login, as well as, any time an administrator modifies any core information within your account.

In case you are representing a Supplier that already has a profile within the System, then it will be the administrator of that organisation that will be responsible to create your account on your behalf, by entering your details within the System.

You should check the details set out in your registration on receipt and promptly notify the PPRA if incorrect or improper information has been created. You should change your password at first login to the System.

In all cases, you will be allowed to manage your personal information once your account is activated.

2 Your obligations

As a registered user, you shall:

- a. agree to keep your login credentials (username and password) and transaction codes relating to the System confidential. You are responsible for the security of your password and should avoid any abuse. All the activities carried out through the System, with the use of your username and password, are attributed to you.
- b. you further agree to take all reasonable measures to prevent the loss, disclosure, modification or unauthorised use of your username, password and transaction codes relating to the System, and undertake to remain the sole holder of these credentials. In case of loss or suspicion of a breach of confidentiality, you should contact the administrator of your organisation or the PPRA, as soon as possible. You acknowledge that the PPRA does not keep a copy of your password or transaction codes.

- c. immediately notify the PPRA if you become aware that your login credentials are compromised, or there is a substantial risk of compromise;
- d. ensure that all information provided to the PPRA in relation to the generation and issuance of your user account is true, complete and up to date;
- e. immediately update your user account information if any contact information is modified;

- g. promptly notify the PPRA of any breach of security related to the System, including but not limited to unauthorised use of your password or account. To help ensure the security of your password or account, please sign out from your account at the end of each session.
- h. in case a Tender requires online tender submission, you take full responsibility to submit the electronic documentation required well before the tender submission deadline in order to avoid last minute upload restrictions. You agree that the PPRA will not be responsible for late submissions due to reasons outside its control (such as Internet latency, service unavailability, Internet access).
- i. you agree that you read the Supplier User Manual provided within the help page of the Website and you are aware of any online tender submission methods which may be set by Procuring Entities. You further agree that it is your responsibility to fully understand the online tender submission processes.
